

③ Native fish of the Inman

Several species found in the Inman River are considered rare, vulnerable or endangered including the Climbing Galaxia.

④ Clydesdales

The Clydesdale horses you can see pull the Horse Drawn Tram across to Granite Island. These are the paddocks in which they have their 'rest and recreation' time when they are not on duty.

⑤ Bird Hide

Sit a moment, listen and watch the birdlife around you. Can you identify any of the birds listed in the bird hide?

⑥ Inman River floodplain

The images below show how different this floodplain area looks from winter to summer. This area is a Red Gum (Eucalyptus camaldulensis) woodland. The area is frequently flooded with the water table very close to the surface. Red Gums rely on this cycle of wet and dry to flourish.

⑦ Victor Harbor Cemetery

Victor Harbor was settled in 1839 and the Cemetery commenced soon after in 1860. Many members of our pioneering families are buried here.

This is the end of the walk and from this point to return to the start, you merely retrace your steps. When you recross the wooden bridge turn left on the path and continue back to Barker Reserve.

Remember the bush walkers code:

- leave behind only footprints
- take only photographs
- respect the flora and fauna around you so that others may also enjoy the pleasure.

THE INMAN RIVER WALK

VICTOR HARBOR
FEEL IT CALLING

THE INMAN RIVER WALK

This walk is an easy stroll following the banks of the Inman River. It traverses natural bushland and although the path is mown, we do suggest the wearing of good walking shoes and especially in warmer months being alert to the possibility of snakes sunning themselves on the path. We also suggest you carry enough water during warmer months - approximately 1 litre per person.

We ask walkers to respect private property in the area, and report any damage to the path and surrounds to the Victor Harbor Council or the Victor Harbor Visitor Information Centre, so that it may be repaired for the safety and enjoyment of others.

For other walks in the area please look at our other brochures at the Victor Harbor Visitor Information Centre or ask one of the volunteers.

Length: 8 km return

Type: Linear with a Loop

Terrain: Easy

The walk follows the river, known to the Aboriginal people as "Moo-oola" and "Moogoora".

① The Inman River Walk

The walk starts at Barker Reserve (Corner of Bay and George Main Rd). In the reserve you will see an Information Board and a monument to Captain Collett Barker. The River Inman was crossed by Captain Collett Barker in 1831 and was named in 1838 after Henry Inman, South Australia's first Police commander.

② Anzac Bridge

Many locals from Victor Harbor and surrounding districts have served in the armed forces during all theatres of war and in peace-time. In honour of those brave souls, many commemorative structures have been installed around Victor Harbor, including the Anzac Bridge, and the Soldiers' Memorial Gardens.
